

GOWLING WLG JOINS THE HUB350 COMMUNITY

Law firm with deep roots in Ottawa will continue to support next generation of tech leaders and established players.

Ottawa, Canada: The Kanata North Business Association (KNBA) is delighted to announce a new partnership with law firm Gowling WLG to support its global technology centre, Hub350.

“We at KNBA are pleased to welcome Gowling WLG to Hub350,” said Julia Frame, KNBA’s Director of Partnerships. “As an Investment Partner, the Gowling WLG team will have the opportunity to engage with our Kanata North community and showcase their expertise in the technology field.”

Gowling WLG and its predecessor firms have been a valued part of Ottawa’s business fabric for over a century and they have consistently supported the city’s tech community from its earliest beginnings. What started with a small office on Sparks Street has grown into a full-service international law firm with global reach. The firm has never forgotten its roots in Ottawa and is proud of its work and relationships with local tech companies.

The partnership with Hub350 is a natural evolution of the firm’s presence in this community and this sector.

“We are proud of our work and relationships with local organizations and the part we play in helping them thrive – be it in our community or around the world,” said Wayne Warren, managing partner of Gowling WLG’s Ottawa office. “Our partnership with Hub350 will help to further ensure that our local tech community has the tools, strategies and perspectives they need to grow and compete at home and abroad.”

Gowling offers a one-stop shop for legal services to business of all stages – from start-ups to more mature private companies and publicly listed entities. Their team has the insight, experience and entrepreneurial spirit to help businesses grow (from founding to exit) and protect what makes them unique. With global capabilities, Gowling is also there for clients as they expand – wherever their trajectory may lead.

Hub350 serves as the gateway to Canada’s largest technology park, a community gathering space and collaborative environment where partners in industry, academia, and investment can co-exist and connect with Kanata North’s 540+ innovation companies. Welcoming Gowling WLG to Hub350’s Investment Pillar represents an initiative to create a broad and diverse finance community in the heart of Kanata North.
